Local Film "M is for Make Believe" Rises to the top of ABC's of Death 2 Contest

Omaha, NE - Local filmmaker, Summer Johnson, has made a horror film that could be part of "ABCs of Death 2," the sequel to the popular 2012 anthology film, "ABCs of Death."

The format is simple: 26 directors and 26 short films, one for each letter of the alphabet. The studios Timpson Films, Drafthouse Films, and Magnolia Pictures are hosting a contest to find the film's 26th director. Submissions have poured in from all over the globe.

Johnson's movie, "M is for Make Believe" is among the most popular entries in the contest. The three minute film is best described as "horrible meets adorable." It's about two young girls who find a dying man in the forest. They mistake him for "the King of the Fairies" and attempt to heal his wounds.

Visit the link below to watch Johnson's PG-13 film. Though tamer than most submissions in the contest, it's probably not safe for work. Votes are calculated by Facebook "likes." To cast your vote, click the "like" button located above the video player.
